THE NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH IN SUSSEX COUNTY, LAYING THE CORNER-STONE. INTERESTING CEREMONIES. ADDRESS BY BISHOP KEANE. THE CASES OF THE LIQUOR-DEALERS. THE HUNTING COURT—CANDIDATES FOR THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF DELEGATES. RUMORS ABOUT THE REPUBLICANS—GREAT SLAUGHTER OF SORA—PRINCE GEORGE CONSERVATIVES, &c.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

THE corner-stone of the Catholic church in Sussex county, was laid with appropriate and interesting ceremonies Sunday afternoon, Right Rev. J. J. Keane, bishop of the Diocese of Richmond, officiating, assisted by Rev. Father Thomas J. Wilson, pastor of St. Joseph's church, in this city.

The ceremony was unfortunately stormy and very inclement, which fact prevented a great many persons who would otherwise have been present from attending the services. The special excursion train which left this city at 10 o'clock consisted of four coaches, which were filled with the members of the congregation and children to the number between 250 and 300, among whom were several citizens of Richmond. Had the weather been fair a very large crowd would have gone out from this city and many more from Richmond.

Bishop Keane arrived on the morning train at 8 o'clock from Richmond. He was met by a committee of gentlemen at the depot and escorted to the residence of Father Wilson, where he remained until the departure of the train for Jarratt's.

The St. Joseph's Catholic Beneficial Society, numbering nearly 100 members, met at the residence of the bishop, and under the command of Vice-President James D. Alton, filed one of the coaches, and occupied a prominent position during the ceremonies at the church.

The train arrived at its destination about 12 o'clock. It was raining so hard, however, that very few of the ladies could leave their seats in the coaches. The ceremonies commenced at half-past 12 o'clock, with but little better shelter than that afforded by umbrellas to protect the assembled crowd from the weather. In anticipation of a fair day, seats had been arranged around the church for the accommodation of five or six hundred people.

Bishop Keane, clothed in his full episcopal robes, and Father Wilson, in his priestly robes, occupied stands on the altar foundations, and the crowd were assembled around with uncovered heads.

The ceremony began with a brief explanation by the bishop of the meaning and of the blessing then to take place. In the beginning, he said, God made all things good; but when sin entered the world its curse came upon all things. Hence, when anything is set apart for the service of God it is blessed. This is done by the priests of the Church, generally accompanied by sprinkling with holy water—that is, water blessed in the name of the Holy Trinity, and sprinkled according to the words of David: "Thou shalt sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: thou shalt wash me, and I shall be made whiter than snow." The ceremony, therefore, consisted in the blessing of the water with which the stone, the place for the altar, and the foundations of the church were to be sprinkled.

At the conclusion of this explanatory remarks of the bishop, the laying of the stone took place, with appropriate psalms and prayers.

After the recitation of the Litany of the Saints the stone was laid in its intended place, at the southeast corner of the church. Then the foundations were sprinkled with holy water during the recitation of psalms and prayers.

Finally, from the stand prepared for the occasion, the Bishop gave a short address to the assembled multitude.

He took for his text the opening words of the 121st Psalm: "I have lifted up mine eyes to the hills: whence doeth my help come? My help cometh from the Lord, who made heaven and earth." The Bishop showed that the joy of David in foreseeing the erection of the temple by his son Solomon, the Bishop showed that the joy of a man on occasion like the present ought to be greater than David's, since the church here to be erected is to be more glorious than the temple of Solomon. It is, indeed, to be far inferior in architectural beauty, but as the second temple of the Jewish law was more glorious than the temple of Solomon, by the presence of our Lord, so this church, in which our Lord is to dwell in the flesh, will be more glorious than the temples of Solomon and Nehemiah. A church in a neighborhood like religion in a man's life. A man's life without religion has no dignity, comfort, or rational meaning. But religion is a man's life filled with consolation and lifts it up to God. In like manner, the church, lifted up on the spire of this little church, will lift up the minds and hearts of all beholders to think of God.

The blessings which this church is to dispense are: 1st. The preaching of the Gospel of Christ; 2d. the Sacraments of baptism and the Eucharist; 3d. the celebration of the Mass; 4th. the preaching in virtue of the commission which our Lord gave to his apostles, and with that guidance of the Holy Ghost which our Lord promised to his church perpetual. 2d. The preaching of love to God, and "charity to all men, and to the neighbor as thyself." 3d. The preaching of the love of the friends and enemies, or whatever might be the friends or the enemies. The cross upon this church tells us that all who are redeemed by the same Lord, and that all must be loved as brethren. 3d. Here, the Eucharistic Sacrifice will be offered, by which the merits of Christ's sacrifice will be poured forth for the sanctification of souls. 4th. Here the penitent sinner will find his healing in the sacrament of penance, and his spiritual food in the Holy Communion. Here, in fine, all sorrows will be laid as the foot of the Cross, and sorrowing hearts will receive consolation from Him who has said: "I will be a Father to the fatherless, and a Father to the orphan." Here, in fine, all sorrows will be laid as the foot of the Cross, and sorrowing hearts will receive consolation from Him who has said: "I will be a Father to the fatherless, and a Father to the orphan."

FOOLING WITH A CROCODILE.—The foal-har performance of Captain James Swan, "the man crocodile," at the Theatre Comique in Providence, came near resulting fatally the other evening. He was in a large plate-glass tank, and after stirring up the water with his hands, he opened his jaws and placed his head between them. Quick as a flash they closed, and Swan's death seemed certain. With almost superhuman exertion he freed himself, however, and sprang out of the tank, his clothes being immediately successful in the treatment of his wounds. He was then taken to his room, and after a short stay, he returned to the water, forced the reptile into submission, and went on with his exhibition.

AN OLD HUNTER KILLED BY A BEAR.—[See News Herald.]—Walter F. King, the hunter who was attacked by a grizzly bear in San Jose, Cal., last week, died of his injuries on Tuesday last. The wound in the head was not dangerous, but the blow given in the side produced internal injuries which resulted in death. King was an old hunter, although he had never before operated in the worst stamping-ground country in the hills of Tuolumne county, and the fights and adventures he had would fill a volume. For a number of years he was associated with James Capen Adams, the celebrated bear-hunter, who went East with a small menagerie, and died while under engagement to Barnum.

SKIRMISH WITH A DEVIL-FISH.—[Leeds Mercury.]—A rather amusing incident was witnessed in the Scarborough Aquarium on Thursday morning. The keeper, while engaged in cleaning out the tank occupied by the octopods, was suddenly seized by the latter (fortunately he had sea-boots on) by the largest of the octopods, which fastened on to his tentacles, and he held firmly to the boots, and the other four held firmly to the rocks forming the back of the tank. A struggle ensued, during which the man found he could not disengage himself without killing the animal, and finally bit the expedient of slipping his leg out, leaving the boot in the water, and beating a retreat. The hungry octopus stuck to the boot for twenty minutes, when it relinquished its hold.

By reason of the inclemency of the weather, the laying of the corner-stone of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion church, which was advertised to take place this morning, has been postponed until next Monday.

In the Hunting Court to-day a number of liquor-dealers whose cases were continued from the last term of the court were arraigned for alleged violations of the Mott law.

A Crime and its Punishment.

DETAILS OF THE LYING-IN OF THE NEGRO THOMPSON AT CANNELTON FOR THE MURDER OF A WHITE MAN—VIGOROUS ACTION OF A JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

(Telegraph to the New York Herald.)

CANNELTON, West Va., September 21.—Kanawha Valley records another lynching. A negro named Thompson was shot to death by a white man named Moore, who was a member of the Government. Colonel F. H. Archer, of this city, has accepted a letter of acceptance of the call made upon him by the Conservative citizens of Petersburg to announce himself a candidate for the House of Delegates. He declares himself to be earnestly in favor of the settlement of the public debt in accordance with the plan adopted by the General Assembly. It is understood that Mr. Archer will also announce himself as a candidate on the same platform.

Vague rumors are afloat to the effect that the Republicans of the city, taking advantage of the division in the Conservative ranks on the debt question, are preparing to nominate a candidate of their own for the House of Delegates, with the hope of electing it. It is believed that such a course is seriously thought of.

The northeast storm has caused unusually high tides in our river, and sportsmen have had unusual luck in killing sora in the marshes below the city. A number of them were killed to-day, and they have been freely offered upon their streets at twenty-five cents per dozen. As instances of extraordinary good shooting, I will mention the fact that a party of six gentlemen, on the early morning tide, killed 1,217 sora, and that four gentlemen on the same marsh killed over 2,000. Other hunters were also successful.

The Conservative County Convention at Prince George Courthouse to-day nominated the following gentlemen to represent them in the Senatorial Convention, which meets at Cape Charles, Va., on Monday next: Charles G. P. T. Hobbs, E. A. Marks, R. B. Batte, from the five districts, and Dr. George E. Rives and W. H. Harrison, delegates at large. Five of the seven gentlemen elected are adherents of the wing of the party known as the Richmond faction.

General Mahone was expected to speak at Halifax Courthouse to-day.

Bishop Keane preached to a large congregation at the Catholic church in this city last night.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

A negro man named Henry Corbin, who was charged with cruelty to his wife, and whose arrest had been ordered a day or two ago, refused to submit to the police, and was sent after him, and in resisting a squad of policemen who were afterwards sent to arrest him struck at Policeman Lowrie several times with an axe. One of the blows wounded Lowrie on the arm. It was found necessary to fire on the man, and he was killed.
